Historical Fibs.

Professor Wheeler recently read a paper before the Yale Alumni Association in which he "exploded" a number of popular historical tales: The famous saying attributed to Louis XIV. of France, L'etat c'est moi, according to Professor Wheeler, was never uttered by Louis at all, but was said by Mazarin twenty years before Louis came to the throne, and said before Mazarin by ANY PERSON who is about to buy a Piano, came to the throne, and said before Mazarin by Queen Elizabeth. Sappho never killed herself by jumping from a rock, but died a natural death. Leonidas fought at Thermopylæ, not with only 300 at his back, but with 7,000. The philosopher Diogenes never lived in a tub. The story of the virtues of the Roman matron Lucretia must be rejected, while the story of the Horati and Curatii is worse than doubtful. We are apt to think of the plague as of the leprosy—as a disease of the past; and yet it rages more or less every year in the East, although Europeans, notably the English, are comparatively exempt from it when residing in the Levant, from their superior cleanliness, neater habits, and love of fresh air. The plague last visited England in 1663-5, but as late as 1720 to determine the superior clean lines. T. CRAWFORD MACDOWELL. destroyed near half the population of Marseilles and seventy years afterward appeared in Russi and Poland. Since then it has been almos On Thursday, the 9th of last January, the Boston Hebrew Fair was visited by General Butier, unknown in Western Europe. The plague of who, after inspecting the various objects of at-traction, delivered an address. the Levant is virtually the same malignant con-tagious lever which, under the name of the black General Butler, who was received with pro-longed cheering, said: I am bound to believe that the reason why I have been so greeted by death, proved such an awful scourge in the four teenth century. In China alone 13,000,000 are reported to have been swept away by the pestiyou is because you have found in my public ca-reer that it has ever been for the good of all lence; in the rest of the East well nigh 24,000, 000; in Europe, 25,000,000; and in Africa people, without distinction of race or condition of life. (Appleuse.) No devout, sincere christian can doubt for a moment the wonderful charteness may be sufficient to the care of the condition of the condition of the condition of the condition of the care o well as men by millions; the earth was black acter of the Hebrew race, and in all the remark-able career of the Jewish nation, we see that Death was on the sea as well as on land: and horrible with agony, terror, and decay from that astion, God's chosen people, came the drifted aimless over the ocean, the crews dead emanation of His plan of salvation to mankind, and putrilying on board, and carrying infection and from that nation has come the religion which and death in turn to the shores on which the has covered the earth with civilization. (Apwinds or tide happened to cast the pestiferons God's people bave remained together vessels. The imagination is appulled at the hideous picture. The fearful mortality gave rise n a most remarkable manner, not as a nationfor they, for a thousand years, have not existed to other shuddering evils. Superstition became as a nation-but there has been a solidarity of a rife; the Jews were everywhere slaughtered on suspicion of poisoning the wells—12,000 of these people in the economy of the Jewish ruce that has kept them to themselves, although scattered all over the world, amid the greatest and most innocent people were cruelly mardered in Metz all over the world, amid the greatest and most alone, many sacrificing themselves in masses to terrile persecutions for many years, almost ages.

avoid the fury of the mob, and in some places that would have destroyed any other nation. The Hebrew nation is a nation distinguished for being exterminated to the last man, woman and child. Thousands of people died of fear; ties of kindred were dissolved by terror; mothers forthree characteristics-the integrity, the thrift, and the industry of the men, and the purity, charity, and domestic virtues of the women. sook their plague-stricken children; the worldly became monomaniacs on the subject of sin; bands of wild devotees roamed through Europe (Applause.) I need pay no compliment where none is needed. I speak from knowledge upon the subject. For forty years I have been conversant with the criminal Courts of Massachusetts and many other States, and I have never with cracifixes, banners, and iron pointed thongs scourging themselves, with the idea of explating the wickedness of the people and appearing Heaven by their sufferings. Humanity under-went a total revolution; society became disyet had a Hebrew client as a criminal. But you may say that was because the Heorews did not organized; the planet was delivered over to a choose you for their lawyer; but that is not the chaos of terror, superstition, crime, pain, pesti-lence, and death. ### Exports of the World.

they should keep themselves to themselves to In a recent issue the New York Commercial Bulletin published tables showing the imports and exports of every country in the world during the year 1876. From these it appears that the foreign commerce of all nations combined amounted in that year to $14,000,400,000, divi. the hope of the Hebrew statesman, seems about ded into $7,474 400,000 imports and $6.526,000,-000 exports. This commerce was distributed as follows: Europe, 71.25 $\mathbb{P}$ cent, of the whole; who to-day is the most powerful on earth-a Europe—the man whose fame has pervaded even the schoolboy's mind, so that it is said that when North and South America, 15.28 @ cent.; Asia, 8.07 P cent.; Australusia, 3.29 P cent.; and Africa, 2.07 % cent. A comparison of these a question was put to one of them, "How is the map of Europe divided?" he replied, "By Bea-consfield." (Laughter.) Under the lead of him. figures with those of population will exhibit some very remarkable results. The total commerce of the several geographical divisions computes as Protectorate over Jerusalem was established, with him at the head of it. Would it not seem that the dram, the thought, the hope of the follows with their respective population:

Commercs Population.
$9.976,000,000 229,000,000
2,140,000,000 $4,840,000
1,131,000,000 80,700,000
492,000,000 1,500,000
291,000,000 80,000,000

...$14,000,000,000 1,262,840'000 Taking an average of all the nations, their exchange of commodities with foreign amount to $11 08 # head. But comparing the several geo-graphical divisions, we find, of course, very large divergences from this common average. For Europe the commerce averages $34 52 7 head of population; for America, $25 52; for Asia, $1 40; for Australasia, $266 77, and for Africa, $3 62. The following table, showing the variations in the world's commerce, makes clear that between the years 1867 and 1873 there was an increase of 30.65 % cent. The year 1876 shows a considerable decline from 1873, not, however, to the extent that might be expected from the general decline in prices that occurred during the interval; and it is a fair inference that the quantity of commodities exchanged between the several nations in 1876 was greater than to 1873:

There is a good deal of talk about the floods now. The Mayor of one of the districts was asked by a sub-prefect if he had taken all necesutions against the rising water in his "Yes," said the Mayor, with a conscientious
